ACTIVE RESEARCH PROJECTS

Military Family Life Course and Decision-making of Dual Military Couples

Cross-sectional study of dual military officer couples in the Navy analyzing the military and family life course of dual military couples and their decision-making processes using a life course perspective.

Midshipman Development in Experiential Leadership Programs (MDELP)

With Wesley S. Huey, U.S. Naval Academy, Joseph Thomas, U.S. Naval Academy, and Charles Carlson, University of Kentucky. Cross-sectional and longitudinal study measuring changes in leadership efficacy and identity among midshipmen who participate in experiential leader programs at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Status Characteristics as a Mediator on Consensus of Leader Selection in Small Groups, and the Impact on Group Performance

With Wesley S. Huey, U.S. Naval Academy. Experimental study to test whether the presence of a specific status characteristic leads to greater consensus on leader selection, and whether this in turn leads to higher performance in small groups.

Trust in Leadership Across Organizational Levels: Leader Behavior and Team Dynamics

With Wesley S. Huey, U.S. Naval Academy, Brian Chontosh, U.S. Naval Academy, Cheri Ostroff, University of Maryland, and Ashley Fulmer, University of Maryland. We are examining how leaders influence the extent to which team members trust their leader and other team members as well as the degree of cynicism toward the organization.
