Applications are invited for the Class of 1957 Chair of Naval Heritage for a 10-month period over the 2015-2016 academic term. The United States Naval Academy is a four-year, undergraduate institution that prepares midshipmen for service in the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps. The successful applicant will possess a distinguished record of published scholarship in naval history (any era, any field) and be an accomplished classroom instructor. The Class of 57 Chair will teach two sections (about 20 students per section) each semester of the academic year, two in plebe (freshman) American Naval History and two upper-level or seminar courses in the instructor's field. The Chair will also participate actively in the Department, especially as a resource for other instructors of naval history.

Inquiries or applications should be addressed to Professor Robert Love at love@usna.edu. Applications should include a cover letter and curriculum vita. The deadline for applications is 10 January 2015, but early applications are welcomed.

Additional information about the position can be found at https://www.usna.edu/HRO/jobinfo/Classof57Chair.php. Information on the USNA History Department is available at http://www.usna.edu/History/Dept-Overview.php.

The successful applicant will be a U.S. citizen, and will be required to undergo a background check. USNA is an equal opportunity employer.

* * *

The Department of History at the United States Naval Academy seeks a tenure-track assistant professor in the field of Ancient Greek and/or Roman History, beginning August 2015. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the first half of the Naval Academy’s core comparative civilization sequence, introductory courses on Ancient Greece and Rome, and majors seminars in his or her specialty. The teaching load is 3-3. Evidence of a strong commitment to undergraduate teaching excellence, innovative research, and service is required. The successful candidate must have a PhD in History or Classics (with a focus on historical study) in hand by August 1, 2015. The department as well seeks a teacher-scholar-mentor who is committed to inclusive pedagogy and whose experience and expertise will contribute to working effectively with a diverse student body and faculty.

Send letter, vita, and three references to Professor Richard Abels (abels@usna.edu), Chair of Greek/Roman History Search Committee, Department of History, United States Naval Academy, 107 Maryland Ave., Annapolis, MD 21402-5044. Electronic submissions welcomed. Although review of completed application packages will begin November 3, 2014, the position will remain open until filled. Semi-finalists will be interviewed via video-conferencing.

Additional information about the position can be found at https://www.usna.edu/HRO/jobinfo/AsstProfGreek-Rome-2014.php. Information about the USNA History Department is available at http://www.usna.edu/History/Dept-Overview.php. The prospective hire will be required to undergo a background check.
The Department of History at the United States Naval Academy seeks an entry-level tenure-track assistant professor in the history of Britain and the British Empire since 1750, beginning August 2015. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the second half of the Naval Academy’s core civilization sequence (world history since 1750), introductory courses on the history of modern Britain and the British Empire, and majors seminars in his or her specialty. Evidence of a strong commitment to undergraduate teaching excellence, innovative research, and service is required. The teaching load is 3-3. The successful candidate must have a PhD in History in hand by August 1, 2015. The department as well seeks a teacher-scholar-mentor who is committed to inclusive pedagogy and whose experience and expertise will contribute to working effectively with a diverse student body and faculty.

Send letter, vita, and three letters of reference to Professor Ernest Tucker (tucker@usna.edu), Chair, British & British Imperial History Search Committee, Department of History, U.S. Naval Academy, 107 Maryland Avenue, Annapolis, MD 21402. Electronic submissions welcomed. Review of completed application packages will begin November 3, 2014. Semi-finalists will be interviewed via video-conferencing. The position will be held open until filled.

Additional information about the position can be found at https://www.usna.edu/HRO/jobinfo/AsstProfBritain-BritishEmpire-2014.php. Information on the USNA History Department is available at http://www.usna.edu/History/Dept-Overview.php. The prospective hire will be required to undergo a background check.

USNA is an equal-opportunity employer.